

Thrifty & Chic Mom

Living life, spending less.

Friday, December 19, 2008

Little First Act Discovery Review

I recently had the chance to try out My First Percussion Instruments by Little First Act Discovery. The set comes with 3 colorful instruments just the right size to fit into tiny hands, a maraca, a tambourine and a castanet. The size and shape really is perfect for little hands and my daughter grabbed them instantly and began shaking. As a mom I appreciated that they are loud enough for my daughter to enjoy them but not so loud as to make my head ache.

The instruments also came with a little manual giving suggestions of activities to do with your child while playing with the instruments. The manual even has 5 rhythm patterns to do with your child along to familiar songs like Skip To My Lou. While the instruments say 6 months and up even my 2 1/2 year old enjoyed shaking the instruments along with the songs. I love toys like this because they encourage your child to discover and experiment and open them up to the world of music. I think Little First Acts did a great job designing the percussion set and know my girls will get lots of use out of their new musical instruments. For more great musical toys check out the entire line from Little First Acts Discovery